

TECHNOLOGY PRODUCERS are professionals who write software application codes or design computer hardware devices or combine both in embedded technology. These highly skilled individuals may organize, store, retrieve, manipulate and analyze data. These skills are critical to business functions such as billing, payroll, financial transactions, scheduling, customer service and more. Or, these professionals may design, develop, produce, test and maintain computer hardware devices.